PROFILE

Iowa State University is a resource of endless opportunities that fuels my desire for a creative life. I graduated with honors and distinction cum laude with a Bachelor of Architecture degree, a Secondary Major in Environmental Studies, and a minor in Design Studies focused on Photography, Ceramics, and Woodworking. As a Gilman International Scholar, I studied Urban Development in Europe, and as a Udall Honorable Mention Scholar, I designed a Native American Community Center using 90% reclaimed materials. Iowa State University inducted me into the Cardinal Key Honorary Society for outstanding leadership. An honors research grant allowed me to study the expanding consumer class in China while working full-time as an Architectural Intern at the firm CO+E Architects and Designers in Beijing, China. I was awarded the Alpha Rho Chi medal from the National Professional Fraternity for Architecture and the Allied Arts Bronze Medal for my leadership, service, and professional merit. I built 48 homes for Greater Des Moines Habitat for Humanity and led three groups to build houses in El Salvador. I worked as an Architectural Intern at Angelo Architectural Associates for a few years before returning to Iowa State University for my Master of Science in Architecture degree in 2016 to open the door to collegiate teaching. Since 2016, I have been a teaching professor in the College of Design and running Arts, Communication, and Design programs with ISU Extension and Outreach 4-H Youth Development. I have enjoyed leadership roles and collaborating with colleagues nationally. With action, inquiry, and a creative, open mind, I will continue my educational journey to save and create things and places of value for future generations.
