Honors Project Options

There are two possible ways for College of Design Students to accomplish the Honors Project. One will be for the student to incorporate the project into an honors studio. The other will be for the student to do the project as an independent study.

Option 1: Honors Studio

The Honors sections of design studio courses will include a body of research that is over and above the criteria for the normal studio experience. All conditions of such a studio must be approved by the respective instructor.

Studio Course (ie. ARCH 401H): Studio Credits:

Option 2: Independent Study

As an independent study, the Honors Project will be the equivalent of three to six hours of academic credit. The project will be designed by the student. The project may be cross-disciplinary or inter-disciplinary in nature. The project is usually completed as an independent research project under the guidance of an adjunct, a tenured or a tenure-track faculty advisor. Indicate below, the number of credits for your independent study.

Independent Study Course (ie. ARCH 490H): Independent Study Credits:

Honors Project Abstract

Describe the procedures and methodology you plan to use in carrying out your project. (This is the most important part of your proposal. Please give us enough information to evaluate your proposal. It would be extremely helpful if you could include a working outline.)

How does this project fulfill the objectives of the Honors Program?
